Innovative Telematics Solutions

Telematics Can Reduce Losses

Holman Insurance Services is proud to offer proprietary advanced technology that measures and proactively manages driver behavior resulting in safer driving habits, fewer accidents and less fuel consumption. We are able to capture and actively manage information from over 20 different telematic devices and can work with your existing telematics service provider, or recommend a device at cost if you are not currently using a system. We oversee all of the efforts to collect, organize, analyze and apply the information to help manage drivers, vehicles and behaviors.

We also will combine telematic information with past loss history to recommend and implement safety training for drivers. Our proprietary safety modules test on six skill categories to identify potentially high-risk operators, giving fleets more visibility and actionable information. Based on these results, we can deploy one or more of our 50 modules to target individual driver deficiencies and promote safer driving. Let us help you understand and manage your risk with advanced telematic technology and safety training expertise.
